

Center the word "Abstract". Use plain 12 point Times New Roman. See APA 2.04.

Abstract

Header includes running head in all caps (flush left) and page number (flush right). See APA 8.03.

Do not indent abstract paragraph. (Indent all other paragraphs in paper.) See APA 2.04.

This paper reports the results of research conducted at one community college to evaluate the effects of fake titles on student comprehension of information delivered in print. The paper places the results in the context of six published articles reporting on similar studies. Cero, Null and Nada (2006); Niemand and Senki (2008); and Jemand (2010) shared methodology and reported similar results. These are contrasted to the remaining three articles, which detailed differing techniques and disparate results. This paper examines all results in the context of Nogen and Keegi's 2005 review of similar studies to conclude that further research is needed to fully understand the effect of fake titles on college student comprehension.

The abstract text is a brief, single-paragraph summary (150-250 words) of the article. An abstract should contain keywords and be accurate, nonevaluative, coherent and concise. See APA 2.04.

Keywords: fake titles, comprehension, college students

Double-space all text. See APA 8.03.

Keywords allow scholars to easily locate article. May be optional for students. See APA 2.04.

Model APA Abstract
Based on APA Publication Manual, 6th ed., 2010.
The abstract may be optional for students. Consult your instructor.

All margins 1". See APA 8.03.